

Resin Sculpture by Frederick Hart

Daughters of Odessa

Donated by Collectors Paul & Cathy Cooper

This resin sculpture showcases the profoundly realistic, classical art style for which the world-renowned sculptor, Frederick Hart (1943-1999), was known. In a world and time where modernist, abstract art was dominant, Hart stayed dedicated to realism.

The resin piece being auctioned depicts four young women, referred to as the “Daughters of Odessa.” Each figure has open, welcoming arms, their expressions peaceful.

Hart dedicated the sculpture to all children who lost their lives in the catastrophes of the 20th century.
