

Brevard College
Fall 2019
Faculty Position in Biology

Brevard College seeks an enthusiastic teacher to fill a tenure-track faculty position as an Assistant Professor of Biology, beginning fall 2019.

Successful candidates must be interested in teaching biology courses at all levels of the undergraduate curriculum, including introductory courses, service courses, and upper-level courses for the major. A terminal degree such as a PhD from an accredited institution is expected. Teaching responsibilities include, but are not limited to, introductory biology for majors and non-majors (in separate courses), cell biology, genetics, and another upper level biology course. An interest in undergraduate research is also expected.

Brevard College, founded in 1853, is a residential liberal arts college. Situated in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Brevard College is located 33 miles southwest of Asheville, North Carolina. Brevard College is committed to an experiential liberal arts education that encourages personal growth and inspires artistic, intellectual, and social action. Our faculty purposefully engage with learners in direct experience and focused reflections in order to increase knowledge, develop skills, and clarify values.

The starting date for this position is August 2019. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. In order to provide a safe and productive learning and living environment, Brevard College conducts background investigations on all final candidates being considered for employment.

Applicants should submit a cover letter of application addressing interest in Brevard College; curricula vitae noting courses the applicant is particularly interested or experienced in teaching; teaching philosophy addressing experiential education; a sample syllabus from a course recently taught; and contact information for three professional references to:
