Whether you have had a sudden change in business plans or a family emergency, knowing your rights as a passenger can save you hundreds of dollars in fees. Understanding the difference between refundable and non-refundable tickets is crucial before you attempt to cancel. If you are unsure which category your reservation falls into, the Hawaiian Airline reservations number +1(888)796-1565 is available to verify your status in seconds. Most standard Main Cabin and First Class fares now allow for changes without a penalty fee, but cancellations for a refund are often restricted to specific ticket types. By contacting +1(888)796-1565, you can explore whether you are eligible for a cash refund or a travel credit that remains valid for one year.

For travelers who booked a "Main Cabin Basic" fare, the rules are notably more restrictive, as these tickets are generally non-refundable and non-changeable after the initial 24-hour grace period. Never assume you are out of options until you have checked with a professional at +1(888)796-1565.

Finally, if the airline itself cancels your flight or changes your schedule by more than a few hours, the Hawaiian Airline cancellation policy entitles you to a full refund regardless of your fare type. To claim this refund and ensure it is processed to your original form of payment, reach out to +1(888)796-1565 immediately. The agents at +1(888)796-1565 can also help you rebook onto a different flight if you still intend to travel. ## Refundable vs. Non-Refundable Fares

To find out the current service fee for your specific route, call +1(888)796-1565 to get an exact quote. For inter-island flights, these fees are typically around $25, while North American and international routes can be $100 or more.
